The Hay-Adams Suspends Operations As a Precaution

The temporary suspension will be in effect from March 21 to May 1

WASHINGTON – The Hay-Adams hotel today announced its decision to temporarily suspend operations amid ongoing developments around the current COVID-19 pandemic. The suspension is effective immediately and The Hay-Adams will reopen as soon as the situation permits but no earlier than May 1st. The decision was made from an abundance of caution and in the interest of the health and safety of the hotel's valued guests and staff.

As the current health crisis continues to severely impact the global and local Washington communities, The Hay-Adams voluntarily made the decision to suspend operations to help prevent the spread and risks associated with the COVID-19 outbreak.

"Our top priority is the health and safety of our guests and team," said Hans Bruland, Vice President and General Manager of The Hay-Adams. "As we have been closely monitoring the outbreak, we felt it was our duty to now make the difficult decision to suspend our operations for a short period. We thank everyone for their understanding during this difficult time and we look forward to welcoming our guests back very soon."

Room bookings and reservations during the March 21 to May 1 period will be canceled and The Hay-Adams will work with guests to rebook for a later date. Questions and inquires about rescheduling your future stay or reservation can be directed to (202) 638-6600 or reservations@hayadams.com.

The Hay-Adams will continue to closely monitor the outbreak and make decisions based on guidance from federal and local officials.

The latest updates on reopening will be posted on The Hay-Adams website www.hayadams.com and social media channels.
