The Hay-Adams Unveils New Commissioned Portraits of United States Supreme Court Justices

Roberts, Thomas, Ginsburg, Breyer, Alito, Sotomayor, Kagan, Gorsuch, and Kavanaugh featured together for the first time inside famed DC bar Off The Record

WASHINGTON – The Hay-Adams today unveiled the latest portraits to adorn the walls of its award-winning hotel bar Off The Record, featuring for the first time ever individual commissions of all nine current United States Supreme Court Justices. The portraits surround the walls of Table 51 (now dubbed “The Bench” by bar staff), a plush, deep-red booth popular among discerning power brokers and politicians who value the privacy it offers.

Pulitzer Prize-winning artists Ann Telnaes and Matt Wuerker, as well as the notable Kevin “KAL” Kallaugher were commissioned for the portraits. Their work also includes many of the bar’s famous and highly sought-after political caricature drink coasters.

A limited-edition cocktail, “Article III”, has been added to the menu in commemoration, featuring bourbon, sweet vermouth, luxardo sherry, vanilla syrup, and chocolate bitters.

Guests seated at “The Bench” will find curated “argument” cards designed to get those gathered around the table talking (and debating) in the spirit of the Supreme Court, with lighthearted prompts like “Does pineapple belong on pizza?” and “National Airport or Reagan National?”

Off The Record hours of operation are Sunday through Thursday, from 11:30 a.m. to 12 a.m.; Friday and Saturday, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. The full bar menu is served until 11:00 p.m. daily.

Named one of the “World’s Best Hotel Bars” by Forbes, Off The Record is known locally as Washington’s best place to “be seen and not heard.” Surrounded by caricatures of the city’s past and present political elite, Off The Record is a popular place for Washingtonians and guests of The Hay-Adams to gather. The upscale hotel bar also serves an inspired menu and superb wine selection.
